HOW IS SELFWEALTH REMUNERATED FOR THE SERVICES IT PROVIDES TO YOU?

SelfWealth staff are employees who are remunerated by way of base salary and potential bonuses. Staff may also be shareholders in SelfWealth either through direct purchases of SelfWealth securities on the open market, or via shares issued via a Limited Rights Plan (LRP).

Potential annual bonuses are entirely discretionary and based on the achievement of a range of performance outcomes related to the individual staff member's key performance indicators as well as company-linked performance. Participation in the LRP is by invitation and is also linked to the individuals contribution to the overall financial performance of SelfWealth.

There are no financial incentives for the provision of general advice, or any volume-based financial incentives linked to the sale, or promotion, of financial products by individual staff members.

SelfWealth derives income from:

- Sharing in the fixed fee 'brokerage' charged to its Clients on securities transactions through its market participant, OpenMarkets and for U.S securities, through PhillipCapital
